This school is exclusively about academics. However, the student culture here is extremely poor. The students here do not encourage their classmates to be different at all, in fact alienating you if you are different. They ignore clubs and activities. Clubs are given very little influence in the school due to the bad overrule of student leadership. During my time here, I would say that student leadership did a poor job of promoting student school spirit because the administration overseeing student leadership usually made the final decisions, rather than the students. I would have liked to see more clubs and activities involved in making decisions rather than just a few that made the decisions for the whole. Overall my experience at Grandview HS was great if it was completely academically based. However, the experience outside of academics could have been much better. The school puts too much focus on academics that it sometimes made me fear having fun.

Grandview definitely feels welcoming for anyone and everyone, whether you're entering high school for the first time, transferring or returning for another year. There's a wide variety of classes to take from electives to challenging core classes. They take pride in effectively preparing students for ap tests and therefore earning the students college credit. However, although there is a strong emphasis on effectively teaching difficult classes, there is an excessive focus on sports. Often times the school focuses so much on sports that it feels like it is overshadowing the academic aspect, which is the whole reason that students are there to begin with.

I like how there were many different types of people there and there are many clubs and sports that someone can participate in, and with every sport the players are very welcoming. Also there is diversity in both students and faculty. I also like how there are many choices on classes to take and also how there are a lot of resources for students, such as a nice library and there are always teachers available and willing to help. Also Grandview helps with college prep throughout the 4 years. Meaning that from freshman to senior year Grandview provides help with preparing for college. But the best thing about grandview is how there is a good balance between academics and athletics, meaning that academics with always come before sports and for someone who wants to continue playing a sport it is very important to start being able to balance athletics and academics.

Grandview is academically rigorous and has an exceptional amount of school spirit. The administration also values the performing arts, which is one of the strongest departments of its kind in Colorado!

The extracurriculars at Grandview are the best and one of the best parts of Grandview! I know they are my favorite because I've been in so many and they've changed my life the most. Graphic Design has an amazing facilities. It has the most recent and updated programs, Mac computers, and Wacom drawing tablets to let students design there art to the fullest! This activity helps decorate the school and coordinates with other classes like leadership and game design. However, my favorite one is orchestral! It feels like a family, has many after school activities like Chambers and playing for the elderly, many field trips, and many opportunities to grow and branch out.
