I like that Sheridan is a small school. Because Sheridan is a small school I feel the teachers have more time to focus on all their students and create special bonds. Everyone is super supportive and everyone is like a family. The academics are good and there is a ton of diversity which pretty much makes Sheridan, Sheridan. Throughout my 4 years of high school I've never had any problems. We have an amazing principle who cares for all her students. Everyday we are encouraged to do great things, spread our ideas, and be involved.

I've been attending Sheridan High School since my freshman year. I really like attending a school with less than 600 students. That feeling of everyone knowing who you are, and also having that family type of school vibe is always great. I've encountered many supportive teachers, that all want to see you succeed. Despite the diversity there, everyone is treated with equal respect. We have many sports that several students participate and clubs student join. I am in a few clubs, I'm not the sporty type. Sheridan is a great school, if you want a small, family type of environment.

Basketball played a huge role in me getting through at sheridan. In the since that when I would get discouraged about things I didn't understand in class, my coaches would sit me down and explain. As well as do thee best to always motivate me.
